TYRRELLS 160th Anniversary @BUON RICORDO

If you are in Sydney later this month, don't miss Tyrrell's 160th anniversary celebration at Buon Ricordo (108 Boundary Street, Paddington) - either for dinner on Thursday 28th March (6.30pm to 7pm) or lunch on Friday 29th March (12 noon to 12.30).

Is there a more fitting way to celebrate this Tyrrell's milestone than at one of Sydney's most famous 'old school' Italian restaurants Buon Ricordo in Paddington? If you haven't been to Buon Ricordo you must (and this is the best way to experience it). If you have had the pleasure, then you will understand why this will be one beautiful Neapolitan feast.

Many whom have attended past Kemeny's Tyrrell's functions, such as at Bennelong and Doyles, have rated them as some of Kemeny's very best. We can assure you that this will be right up there.

Tickets are $195 each. Please call 13 888 1 or email orders@kemenys.com.

We hope you can come along because there's no way you'd want to miss out on the following:

THE CREATIVE GENIUS

Ray Beckwith was a scientific genius who revolutionised Australian winemaking. From 1935 to 1973 Penfolds was his laboratory, where he was instrumental in the development of our leading red wines. His greatest discovery was the use of PH technology to prevent wine from spoiling. This wine bears all the hallmarks of Cabernet Sauvignon, with classic savoury notes supported by well-handled oak and supple tannins. An experiment of which Ray would approve.

THE MOST EXCITING CHAMPAGNE LAUNCH THIS MILLENNIUM

Laurent-Perrier La Cuvee Champagne NV

Region: Champagne Rating: 95/100

After 15 years of experimentation, Laurent Perrier is replacing its non-vintage Champagne with Laurent Perrier La Cuvee Champagne NV. The scale of this undertaking by Laurent-Perrier is better understood by the fact its brut non-vintage is the fifth biggest selling champagne in the world. Launching a new champagne to replace the house style is an extremely rare event. The new La Cuvee spends an extra year ageing in the cellar, resulting in a more complex wine. No fewer than 100 different crus enter into the La Cuvee blend. Laurent-Perrier cellarmaster Michel Fauconnet says "La Cuvee allows us to turn up our style" which has always been chardonnay driven. La Cuvee has double the chardonnay content of the average champagne and it is noticeably fresher and purer, the higher chardonnay creating a nose with hints of fresh citrus. A new star has been born and we predict that La Cuvee will emerge as one of Australia's most popular champagnes.

THE FIRST KNOWN BLENDED ROSE CHAMPAGNE

Veuve Clicquot Brut Rosé NV

Region: Champagne
Rating: 96/100

Over 200 years ago in 1818 Madame Cliquot invented the first known blended rosé champagne. Blending parcels of red-wine grapes created a stronger rosé. Today, cellar master Dominique Demarville continues to source red wines from the most sought after vineyards in Champagne to maintain the bold style that Veuve is known for. Champagne expert Tyson Stelzer agrees noting that "this is a lesson in what a difference 12% red wine can make in a blend, particularly in the hands of one of the finest red wine outfits in all of Champagne". Appealing vibrant strawberries, red cherries and red apples. Pinot noir takes a confident lead in a full mid palate which coasts to a long, lip smacking finish.

AR Lenoble Brut Intense NV

Region: Champagne
Rating: 94/100

The quality of AR Le Noble champagnes impressed us from the first time they were tasted. We weren't alone in our praise. World renowned wine critic Jancis Robinson was clearly excited by these wines. "AR Le Noble's reputation as a high quality boutique producer is already established. Anyone with money can choose a prestige cuvee - a Dom Perignon or Cristal - but it takes a bit more knowledge, and confidence, to serve a better value-alternative such as a long-aged non-vintage champagne from... PURE NEW ZEALAND

Remote snow-capped mountains feeding pristine rivers and the rolling, impossibly lush green countryside fuel the notion of purity which is integral to the reputation of New Zealand's dynamic wine industry. The increasingly prevalent emphasis on sustainability, along with organic and biodynamic practices used by many wineries only add to the attraction.

New Zealand's wine regions extend 1,600km (1000 miles) from sub-tropical Northland (36° S) down to Central Otago (45° S), home to the world's most southerly vineyards. All regions and their sub-regions have a plethora of unique soils and climatic conditions producing a dazzling array of quality wines.

Once only famous for Marlborough sauvignon blanc, New Zealand is now acknowledged as producing some of the world's best pinot noir and chardonnay, Bordeaux blends, syrah and aromatic whites.

Waiana Estate, located in Hawkes Bay, only produce rosé and they are very good at it. Blended from pinot gris and merlot it is a dry, ultra-pale Provencal-style rosé boasting mountains of minerality. It is about as close to a Provencal rosé as you'll find outside of France. Try it and see what all the fuss is about. Perfect on a hot summer's day.

Shiraz REGIONALITY

Shiraz can be found in almost all Australian wine regions. It's a strong, durable variety which grows well in most conditions.

Of course, soils, aspect and climatic conditions play a great part in the flavour and structure of the resultant wine. In the warmer regions, we find bigger, richly flavoured, dark berry- driven wines, whereas the cooler regions give us more elegant, fine-boned wines with sinewy, savoury red-berried characters with plenty of spice and herbal overtones.

Here are some excellent examples revealing the many faces of Australian shiraz.

The Barossa Valley is, by far, the most famous shiraz region, with its rich, chocolate-laced, blackberry and plum expressions, often exhibiting heroic tannins and impressive cellaring potential. Eden Valley shiraz vineyards have an elevation of around 400m, which contributes to significantly lower temperatures during the growing season. The resultant shiraz is generally more elegant in flavour and structure.

McLaren Vale's Mediterranean-style climate, and rich, predominantly ironstone soils deliver rich, full-bodied shiraz with dark chocolate and mocha characters, dried herb and distinctive ferrous notes. Cellaring potential is usually very good.

The Adelaide Hills, because of its higher altitude and cooler climate has a reputation for elegant but full-flavoured shiraz with distinctive pepper and spice characters and fine tannins.

VICTORIA

Two hours drive from Melbourne finds you in the Pyrenees wine region. The region has shown a great synergy with shiraz, producing rich, full-bodied styles in the warmer sub-regions, and spicy, elegant 'syrah' wines in the cooler nooks. Often they have immense cellaring potential.

Great Western, in Victoria's Grampians region has a long history of producing fine shiraz wines. Cooler than the central Victorian regions, Great Western shiraz shows a smooth elegance, based around cherry and plum flavours with baking spice and pepper. WESTERN AUSTRALIA

The cooler areas of Western Australia's Great Southern, such as Frankland River and Mount Barker are ideal for shiraz production. The shiraz wines are renowned for their intense dark fruits, savoury, spicy, earthy notes and fine tannin structure.

The excellence of Margaret River shiraz can be forgotten in the hype surrounding their cabernet. The fact remains that 'Margs' shiraz makes some superb wine, the style of which varies with the input of diverse sub-regions - from elegant, spicy styles through to powerful fruit-driven gems which demand extended cellaring.

HOME GROWN

SAVVY

CRISP - DRY - REFRESHING

There was a time, not so long ago, when the mention of sauvignon blanc in Australia almost exclusively referred to the steamrolling Marlborough savvy juggernaut. Marlborough sauvignon blanc has flooded the local market and dominated the white wine sales figures for over three decades, capitalising on Australian drinkers' thirst for something different, at a time where the first wave of chardonnay fashion fell out of favour, and the great traditional varieties such as semillon and riesling had fallen into the 'uncool' or 'misunderstood' categories.

Over the last decade or so, Australian sauvignon blanc has gathered a vast local following, with wines which are riper, softer, more elegant and food-friendly than their trans-tasman counterparts. The over-the-top grassiness, sweat and uber-acidity eventually gave many a Marlborough savvy drinker severe palate fatigue.

Margaret River and Adelaide Hills have been the major movers in top-shelf Aussie savvy, with classic drink-now unwooded styles leading the way, but with a surge in complex, textural, barrel-fermented styles which can improve with cellaring.

Here is a small selection of some of the top Australian savvys.

{secret winery} has consistently crafted exceptional Sauvignon Blanc from the Adelaide Hills with this the best that I have had. The nose is punchy with guava, green apple and some sweeter lychee notes that set the wine apart from an aromatic perspective. The palate has precise acidity and a melange of fruits that are centered around green apple with sour edged passion fruit giving texture and a flowing line of acidity an important textural counterpoint. Drying and taut to finish but showing plenty of fruit. Impressive. Drink: 2018-2020. Rating: 96/100.

CLARE VALLEY THE REISLING TRAIL

The Riesling Trail was originally a railway line that travelled between Adelaide and Spalding that was first established in 1860. It's future was becoming uncertain in the 1980's and after it received substantial damage during the 1983 Ash Wednesday bushfire a decision was made to close the line down.

A group of locals believed it could be rejuvenated as a 33 km long, recreation trail passing through towns, which are home to famous Clare Valley wineries, producers of the region's world-class rieslings, and in 1994 it reopened as the Riesling Trail. This initiative was South Australia's first conversion of a railway line into a recreation trail for walking and cycling. It is now an extremely popular long walking and cycling trail, enjoyed by many thousands annually.

Region: Central Victoria Rating: 95/100 👍👍

This 1960 is a salute to Eric Stevens Purbrick who arrived at Tahbilk in 1931 and was winemaker for more than 40 vintages. Eric created Tahbilk's flagship Special Bin wine made from the best parcels of fruit from each vintage which was often a blend of Shiraz and Cabernet Sauvignon. This release shows an exotic mix of ripe dark berries, chocolate and coffee. Quality French and American oak has added attractive sweet and spicy aromas to a palate that is packed full of ripe fruit concentration. It finishes with generous length and will cellar for up to two decades. Only 1,000 dozen made.

1960 Teusner Old Vine The Young Gun Shiraz 2015

Region: Barossa Valley Rating: 96/100 👍👍

In 2007, Kym Teusner won the Kemenys medal for Young Winemaker of the Year and has since emerged as the star of the new breed of Barossa winemakers. Teusner's love of old-vine grapes sourced from old-school Barossa growers has led to the evolution of his concentrated and powerful shiraz style - and this shiraz is no exception. Sourced from the surrounds of the original Teusner homestead in the Barossa Valley, it is generous and fleshy with restrained ripeness and deep, long flavours that will gain further complexity with cellaring for a decade or more. True & righteous pleasure. Only 700 dozen made.

THE NOBLE GRAPE - CABERNET SAUVIGNON

Cabernet sauvignon, the basis of some of the greatest Bordeaux first growths, is the world's most planted grape variety. It thrives in wine regions the world over, and is instantly identifiable by its distinctive blackcurrant and dark chocolate aromas.

Australia produces top quality cabernet in a number of regions, with Western Australian and South Australian wineries leading the way with many world-class, cellar-worthy expressions. The very best cabernets are crafted from grapes picked at optimum ripeness.

If harvested too early the wines can be herbal and acidic. If overripe, the wines are cumbersome and non-descript.

Currently, most pundits consider Margaret River to be the source of Australia's best cabernet sauvignon, with fine examples also coming from most Australian regions including Great Southern, Langhorne Creek and Hilltops in New South Wales.

TASTE OF

Tassie

Tasmania is quickly becoming the jewel in the Australian wine industry's crown. There are seven Tasmanian sub-regions, all genuinely cool-climate boasting ideal, long-ripening seasons, producing intense fruit flavours and brilliant natural acidity. It's simply a perfect place for wine production.

From the Tamar Valley near Launceston, in the north, to the Coal Valley, near Hobart, most Tassie vineyards specialise in the 'Burgundian' varieties, making still chardonnay and pinot noir, which also goes into their stellar sparkling wines, along with aromatic white varieties such as riesling and pinot gris. There are pockets of cabernet, merlot and shiraz, but they are minor contributors.

ELEGANT COOL-CLIMATE CHARDONNAY

Part of the Frogmore Creek stable, 42 Degrees South relates to the central latitude of Tasmania. Pink Rosé continues its spectacular world-wide rise in popularity. The simple fact is that its refreshment factor, drinkability and versatility with food are its major selling points.

The French region of Provence is the spiritual home of rosé wines, specialising in fine, pale salmon coloured, elegantly dry and textured styles which are great with a wide range of foods.

The best Australian rosés are taken very seriously by their producers, carefully allocating premium quality grapes and mostly following the Provence style. This approach has resulted in a marked spike in quality which has further ignited the enthusiasm for Australian rosé.

If you're yet to experience the joys of seriously good rosé, here is a delicious selection of both Australian and French roses of the highest quality. Try these and you'll surely be back for more.

ALTERNATIVE Australian Varieties

In Australia, winemaking from grapes has existed since soon after the First Fleet landed. It wasn't until 1833 that James Busby brought, from Europe, a range of vine cuttings to be propagated, which were to be the beginnings of the Australian wine industry as we now know it. These cuttings included such varieties as shiraz, cabernet sauvignon, chardonnay and semillon, which were the mainstay of the wine industry for many years.

Nowadays, winemakers are increasingly aware that many southern European varieties are very suitable to grow in Australia's warmer climate. These varieties are generally very hardy, and can flourish, producing excellent wines despite unpredictable Australian climatic conditions, including heatwave and drought.

These 'alternative' grape varieties can be found growing across most wine regions, with the local conditions providing to their own unique take on style.

The palate is concentrated yet elegantly weighted, displaying outstanding fruit purity and delicate texture, wonderfully supported by perfectly pitched acidity. The wine is vibrant and seamless with an extremely long linear finish. At its best: 2020 to 2030. Price: $32.00. Rating: 95/100.

Peter Yealands Reserve Sauvignon Blanc 2018

Region: Marlborough
Rating: 96/100

They've done it again. Crowned for the second consecutive year as New Zealand's best sauvignon blanc at the Marlborough Wine Show 2018. An intensely aromatic sassy showing guava, citrus and fresh grassy notes. Vibrant flavours of lemon, gooseberry and stone fruit, balanced with tight acidity. A smooth, long wine which deserves its accolades. Try it with Thai cuisine.

Dalfarras Pinot Grigio 2018

Region: Victoria
Rating: 94/100

One of the most in demand whites. Rosa Purbrick, formerly a Dal Farra before marriage is married to Tahbilk owner and chief winemaker Alister Purbrick. The Dalfarras range is named after Rosa who is a well-known Victorian artist with her designs featuring on the wine labels. Produced from Pinot Grigio grapes grown at Tahbilk's vineyards in the King Valley and the Goulburn Valley; it reflects the Italian origins of this variety - orange tinted, light, fresh and floral with vibrant stone-fruits and a touch of spice.

Coriole Estate Redstone Shiraz 2017

Region: McLaren Vale
Rating: 95/100

Gold, Gold, Gold as Norman May would say. Winner of gold medals at the 2018 Royal Adelaide Wine Show, Perth Royal Wine Show and the Royal Melbourne Wine Awards. Fruit sourced from three Coriole vineyards in McLaren Vale each contributing complexity to the final blend. The bright fruit character from the Blewitt Springs vineyard, the savoury structure from the Coriole Estate vineyard and the earthy richness from its vineyard in Willunga. A joy to drink.

Patritti Cabernet Sauvignon 2016

Region: McLaren Vale
Rating: 95/100

Patritti does it again - a perfectly weighted medium-bodied cabernet that has elegance and persistence, cassis fruit with tannins lying at its feet, sufficient to establish the bona fides of the wine without raising their voices. Perfect balance and length, oak a bystander. Alcohol: 13.6%. Date tasted: Sep 2017. Drink by: 2031. Price: $25. Rating: 95/100.

Kalleske Clarrys Grenache Shiraz Mataro 2018

Region: Barossa Valley
Rating: 94/100

There's a fistful of producers in this wide, brown land who have a knack for nailing the drinkability of red blends in a just-so way that sort of surpasses the blend and just makes for a reveller's good time drink of joy and slurpability; and then they price accordingly fairly. One such I think of is Kalleske and this Clarry's GSM blend. Couple in the heavyweight, sexy, old school bottle and one of the finest looking screwcaps going around, and you've pretty much got a complete package for a 'lobster'.

Erin Eyes Pride of Erin Single Vineyard Reserve Riesling 2016

Region: Clare Valley
Rating: 95/100

Polish straw hue. A delicate, restrained but lifted and fragrant aroma of fresh and dried flowers. Lovely. The wine is refined and delicate yet intense on palate, with freshness and balanced seamless acidity. A wine of true line and length. Delicate, refined, intense, focused and delicious. This should richly reward cellaring. Alcohol: 12%. Closure: screwcap. Drink: to 2028. Price: $35. Rating: 95/100.

Port Phillip Estate Quartier Pinot Gris 2018

Region: Mornington Peninsula
Rating: 93/100

Masters of pinot gris, Kooyong, are part of the same group as Port Phillip Estate and Quartier - so this is always very good. The nose bursts with aromas of fleshy white pear, honey dew melon and rosewater. A year's maturation has added great benefit allowing complexity to build. The textured palate is full of mandarin and apple flavours complete with a light dusting of phenolics and flows into a crisp, long and gingery finish.

Vasse Felix Filius Chardonnay 2017

Region: Margaret River
Rating: 93/100

"Filius" translates to 'son of' in Latin, reflecting the relationship between this wine and its premier 'father' - the Vasse Felix Estate Chardonnay. It shows many of hallmarks of chardonnay from Vasse Felix premier chardonnay vineyards. Bright, elegant fruit, subtle wild complexities and a tight acid structure, reflecting the vibrancy and purity of this variety in Margaret River. Top value chardonnay.

Giant Steps LDR Pinot Noir Syrah 2018

Region: Yarra Valley
Rating: 95/100

LDR stands for light dry red. 51% Pinot Noir, 49% Syrah co-fermented. It is style making a welcome comeback inspired by the great Hunter River burgundy of Maurice O'Shea who pioneered the blend at Mount Pleasant in 1950. Bright and lifted florals, fruits and subtle smokey scents and spices. It is gorgeous and so very easy to drink. Wine critic Campbell Mattinson says "it's the kind of wine we all need more of in our lives". He is right. It is one of those wines that you can enjoy with or without food. Worthy gold medal winner at the National Wine Show and Royal Melbourne.

Rockcliffe Single Site Shiraz 2015

Region: Denmark
Rating: 96/100

The bouquet and palate are in perfect harmony; gently warm spices are sewn through fragrant aromas and the intense, yet only medium-bodied, palate. There are no challenges here, thanks to the immaculate balance and mouthfeel of its panoply of forest fruits. Just sit back and enjoy the ride. Alcohol: 14.5%. Closure: screwcap. Rating: 96/100.

Flowstone Queen of the Earth Cabernet Sauvignon 2014

Region: Margaret River
Rating: 97/100

Every year this wine scores 97+ points from wine critics. No need to wait for reviews on the 2014 vintage, as it was a cracking vintage and this is probably the best yet. From a dry grown vineyard in Wilyabrup, planted in the late '70s, it's hand-picked, open fermented for 20 days then heads to French oak barriques for 3 years, and once bottled, allowed to relax for 15 months. Complex and engaging, the palate builds to a beautifully textural array of red and blue fruits, supported by the spicy oak, and gently fade with finely honed tannins. The only regret is that less than 2 barrels (100 dozen) has ever been made (a lot more people should get to love this).

Mount Horrocks Watervale Riesling 2018

Region: Watervale
Rating: 96/100

Riesling is my "go to" grape for spring and summer quaffing - and this new Clare Valley release is right in the groove; fresh, vibrant and citrusy with minerality and crisp acid finish. There is plenty of length to this estate-grown single vineyard riesling from Watervale and all Stephanie Toole's wines are certified organic and are vegan friendly. This is bone dry and would pair brilliantly with fresh oysters or pan-fried King George whiting. Damn fine drinking. Drink now or cellar.

Silkman Reserve Semillon 2018

Region: Hunter Valley
Rating: 96/100

This is the Hunter's most in demand semillon by superstar winemaker Liz Silkman. The prior vintage was James Halliday's top rated semillon. We expect this to be well gone before James even releases his review of this 2018 vintage. As wine critic Campbell Mattinson aptly put it "occasionally a star is born and you get to watch; Liz Silkman is one such". It is tightly wound yet highly expressive with a bouquet of lemon and lime juice with similar flavours rushing along the palate. You know it will be great in decades to come yet it is so delicious when you drink it young. If you manage to put and keep some in your cellar you have better control than us.

Driftwood Single Site Chardonnay 2017

Region: Margaret River
Rating: 97/100

Estate blocks 20 and 21, whole-bunch pressed, wild-fermented in French oak, no mlf, matured for 8 months on lees before eight barrels selected for this wine. Here complexity and power are the name of the game, power both in depth and length. Fresh acidity is woven like a thread of silver through a tapestry, orange blossom, lemon curd, white peach and nectarine, pink grapefruit and toasty oak notes come and go. Alcohol: 13%. Closure: screwcap. Date tasted: Jan 2018. Drink by: 2027. Price: $60. Rating: 97/100.

IT'S A HOUSEHOLD NAME

TWO OF OUR GREATEST-EVER SHIRAZ DEALS

After over a century of producing stellar wines exclusively from their 'home' region in the Hunter Valley, one of Australia's most prominent family producers made their first wine from Heathcote in 1997, having long admired the wines from this famous Victorian region. Wine critic John Fordham says this "decision to source shiraz from Victoria's Heathcote region two decades ago has been vindicated many times over. Selling for $25 at cellar door, Kemenys price is only $9.95.

After pleading with this famous wine producer, we have been given the green light to sell their Hunter Valley estate shiraz for the same incredibly low price. Just ask for Secret Label Hunter Valley Shiraz 2016 (KSL 6549) and you will receive the wine, also wearing the producer's label, for only $9.95. Like the Secret Label Heathcote Shiraz, it currently sells for $25 at cellar door. James Halliday is an admirer, noting that "it is indelibly stamped with Hunter structure and savour. Bravo!...this is enjoyable now but will be a surprise after some bottle age". Hunter Valley shiraz, whilst having excellent depth of fruit flavours, is typically medium bodied and elegant, which makes a fascinating juxtaposition with their richer, bolder Heathcote expression. We suggest that you grab some of both to compare and contrast.

"BRAVO!", JAMES HALLIDAY

Secret Label Hunter Valley Shiraz 2016 (KSL 6549)

Region: Hunter Valley
Rating: 94/100 🍷👍

Yet another cab off the regional rank at {secret winery name}, this is indelibly stamped with Hunter structure and savour. Bravo! Firmer than the {secret flagship wine}, with plum, tobacco, carnal forest notes and some varnished leather grunt across its tannic cylinders. This is enjoyable now but will be a surprise after some bottle age. Alcohol: 13.5%. Date tasted: Jan 2018. Closure: screwcap. Drink by: 2026. Price: $25. Rating: 93/100.

Secret Label Heathcote Shiraz 2015 (KSL 3048)

Region: Heathcote
Rating: 94/100 🍷👍

This full-flavoured shiraz features palate-gripping intensity, long length, balance, elegance, and loads of peppery and spicy characters". This shiraz, made by a legendary Australian producer has cemented its reputation as Australia's "go-to" Heathcote shiraz because of its outstanding quality and great value-for-money at the cellar door price of $25 a bottle. Our price of only $9.95 is so amazingly low for a shiraz of this quality, that we have to keep the identity of the wine absolutely top secret.
